(c) Whether any protest has been launched either through diplomatic or other channels before the US Government in this regard; and

(d) if so, the details thereof?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS (SHRI OMAR ABDULLAH): (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Map Point, 2002, a software released by the Microsoft corporation, shows Jammu and Kashmir as well as Arunachal Pradesh as disputed.

(c) and (d) The matter was taken up by the Consultate General of India, San Francisco with the senior officials of the Microsoft corporation. They subsequently clarified that the Indian state of Arunachal Pradesh is no longer being shown as disputed in Map Point's maps. This label was removed from their map data in the late February of this year after the issue was brought to their attention. However, this change will not be visible until the next release of the Map point's product. As regards J & K map, the Microsoft conveyed to the Consulate General of India, San Francisco that they would be removing the term 'disputed' from all the map labels in the Jammu and Kashmir region to align the maps with the UN depiction of the region, by the fourth quarter of the calendar year 2002.
